Opportunity Cost

Opportunity cost is not what was already paid for a resource. The opportunity cost of an input or a resource is the value of that resource in its next best alternative. If you pay x amount of dollars for a resource, and then discover its real value is  $\frac{1}{2}x$ , then the opportunity cost of that resource is  $\frac{1}{2}x$ .